

#NO COP ACADEMY

The #NoCopAcademy campaign is an effort supported by community organizations across Chicago, that want to see $95 million invested in our communities rather than police training grounds. From the statement of opposition:

*Chicago already spends $1.5 billion on police every year—that's $4 million every single day. We spend 300% on the CPD as a city than we do on the Departments of Public Health, family and support services, transportation, and planning and development (which handles affordable housing). This plan is being praised as a development opportunity to help local residents around the proposed site, but when Rahm closed 50 schools in 2013, six were in the neighborhood of Garfield Park, where they plan to construct. The message is clear: Rahm supports schools and resources for cops, not for Black and Brown kids.

*We demand a redirecting of this $95 million into Chicago's most marginalized communities instead. Real community safety comes from fully-funded schools and mental health centers, robust after-school and job-training programs, and social and economic justice. We want investment in our communities, not expanded resources for police.

JOIN THE CAMPAIGN

Visit: nocopacademy.com

Use the hashtag #NoCopAcademy to chime in on the conversation and stay up to date on upcoming actions to plug into!

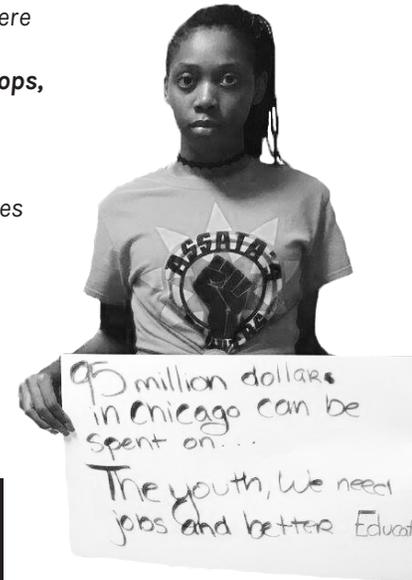

Part of an organization interested in joining the campaign?
E-mail us at nocopacademy@gmail.com

#NO COP ACADEMY

The #NoCopAcademy campaign is an effort supported by community organizations across Chicago, that want to see $95 million invested in our communities rather than police training grounds. From the statement of opposition:

*Chicago already spends $1.5 billion on police every year—that's $4 million every single day. We spend 300% on the CPD as a city than we do on the Departments of Public Health, family and support services, transportation, and planning and development (which handles affordable housing). This plan is being praised as a development opportunity to help local residents around the proposed site, but when Rahm closed 50 schools in 2013, six were in the neighborhood of Garfield Park, where they plan to construct. The message is clear: Rahm supports schools and resources for cops, not for Black and Brown kids.

*We demand a redirecting of this $95 million into Chicago's most marginalized communities instead. Real community safety comes from fully-funded schools and mental health centers, robust after-school and job-training programs, and social and economic justice. We want investment in our communities, not expanded resources for police.

JOIN THE CAMPAIGN

Visit: nocopacademy.com

Use the hashtag #NoCopAcademy to chime in on the conversation and stay up to date on upcoming actions to plug into!

Part of an organization interested in joining the campaign?
E-mail us at nocopacademy@gmail.com

#NoCopAcademy

Frequently Asked Questions

What is Rahm trying to do?

Mayor Rahm Emanuel is trying to build a training compound for Police and Fire in West Garfield Park that will cost the city $95 million dollars.

I hadn't heard about this yet, why isn't it being talked about more?

Rahm has been trying to sneak the plan through quickly and quietly, so people won't oppose it. They announced the idea over 4th of July weekend, when people were busy barbecuing with their families.

Why is this a bad idea?

This is a bad investment. The City already spends $4 million per day on the police, and investing more money in policing will mean more violence for Black communities and communities of color in Chicago. We need fully-funded public schools, accessible mental health clinics, living wages, and after school and job training programs if we want to build strong communities.

But don't cops need better training?

"Better" training has never been proven to solve police violence. What's more, the problem is about accountability, not training. Until there is real community oversight of police, as proposed by CPAC, police continue to kill, harass, profile, beat, and frisk Black people with impunity.

But won't this bring in economic development?

That's a joke! The city says this will bring 100 new jobs to the area, but that's nothing for $95 million dollars. There's nothing about the plan that guarantees those jobs will go to local residents, and the idea that the training center's existence will bring retail to this industrial, non-residential area is absurd.

What's the plan with this campaign?

We demand schools for kids, not cops. We have brought together grassroots organizations from across the city to launch the No Cop Academy campaign. We plan to fight back together- through the media, train takeovers, canvassing, civil disobedience, and by building a front of popular opposition- to stop this compound. Now that Rahm was able to get City Council to purchase the land, we need to build power all across the city to say #NoCopAcademy when the project comes back to City Hall this Spring.

How can I help?

There are so many ways to help. Check out our ideas for how to get involved by visiting our website: nocopacademy.com

#NoCopAcademy

Frequently Asked Questions

What is Rahm trying to do?

Mayor Rahm Emanuel is trying to build a training compound for Police and Fire in West Garfield Park that will cost the city $95 million dollars.

I hadn't heard about this yet, why isn't it being talked about more?

Rahm has been trying to sneak the plan through quickly and quietly, so people won't oppose it. They announced the idea over 4th of July weekend, when people were busy barbecuing with their families.

Why is this a bad idea?

This is a bad investment. The City already spends $4 million per day on the police, and investing more money in policing will mean more violence for Black communities and communities of color in Chicago. We need fully-funded public schools, accessible mental health clinics, living wages, and after school and job training programs if we want to build strong communities.

But don't cops need better training?

"Better" training has never been proven to solve police violence. What's more, the problem is about accountability, not training. Until there is real community oversight of police, as proposed by CPAC, police continue to kill, harass, profile, beat, and frisk Black people with impunity.

But won't this bring in economic development?

That's a joke! The city says this will bring 100 new jobs to the area, but that's nothing for $95 million dollars. There's nothing about the plan that guarantees those jobs will go to local residents, and the idea that the training center's existence will bring retail to this industrial, non-residential area is absurd.

What's the plan with this campaign?

We demand schools for kids, not cops. We have brought together grassroots organizations from across the city to launch the No Cop Academy campaign. We plan to fight back together- through the media, train takeovers, canvassing, civil disobedience, and by building a front of popular opposition- to stop this compound. Now that Rahm was able to get City Council to purchase the land, we need to build power all across the city to say #NoCopAcademy when the project comes back to City Hall this Spring.

How can I help?

There are so many ways to help. Check out our ideas for how to get involved by visiting our website: nocopacademy.com